

WILLIAM RUSSELL.

WILLIAM RUSSELL, second son of Gen. William and Tabitha Adams Russell, was born in Culpeper county, Va., March 6th, 1758. While yet a boy he was found in the line of brave defenders of the frontier of southwestern Virginia against the Indians. An outline of his public services is given by Collins, in his "History of Kentucky," from which the following is taken:

"Col. William Russell, in whose honor the county of Russell was named, was born in Culpeper county, Va. In 1774, young Russell, at the early age of sixteen, was engaged with a party under the command of the illustrious Daniel Boone, in repelling the aggressions made upon the settlements by a tribe of southern Indians. During this expedition, his comrades, from his tender age, were compelled to relieve the weight of his rifle, by carrying his portion of baggage and provisions.

In the memorable battle of King's Mountain, the most decisive of the Revolution, young Russell bore a distinguished part. He was a lieutenant in the mounted regiment from Virginia, and owing to the indisposition of his Captain, led his company in the action. He was, it is believed, the first man to reach the summit of the mountain, and among the first to receive a sword from the vanquished enemy.

As a lieutenant in the mounted regiment, and as aid to Col. Campbell, he engaged in the famous battles of Whitsell's Mills and Guilford Court-House, and in an expedition against the Cherokee Indians. In 1780 he visited Kentucky and middle Tennessee, spending the summer near Nashville, and returning to Virginia in the fall. Soon after the close of the war of Independence, Captain Russell emigrated to Fayette county, Ky. In the several expeditions under Gen. Charles Scott, Col. James Wilkinson, and Gen. Anthony Wayne, against the Indians, in 1791 and 1794, Col. Russell acted a gallant and distinguished part, exhibiting military capacity of a high order. In 1808 President Madison appointed him to the command of a regiment in the regular army. In 1811, after the battle of Tippecanoe, where his courage and skill were again prominent, Gen. Harrison being transferred to the command of the northwestern army, Col. Russell succeeded him in the important command of the frontiers of Indiana, Illinois, and Missouri. After Hopkins' campaign, Col. Russell, in conjunction with Gov. Ninian Edwards of Illinois, planned the expedition against the Peoria Indians, which was crowned with complete success.

After peace was restored, Col. Russell retired to his farm. He served Kentucky for many years in her legislative halls. From the age of sixteen to sixty-seven, in the field or in the cabinet, he was literally at his country's service. No man ever showed a more steady and persevering zeal, or a more fervent and devoted patriotism."

Between 1783 and 1786, he was most of the time in Kentucky, looking after his father's lands and making the foundation of his own future home. The military tract of two thousand acres, which his father had inherited from his deceased brother Henry, was given to him and his brother Robert, and equally divided between them. This land is situated upon the stream of "Elkhorn," so called from its tortuous windings, and is six miles from Lexington. Upon the portion owned by him was a large fine spring, flowing from a cave, which has always borne the name of "Russell's Cave."

The spot upon which he built his house was elevated, and very near to the splendid spring and cave, which gave a picturesque and rather romantic view. Here he made his home, and spent the remainder of his life. He called it "Mount Brilliant," to keep in memory the old "Mount Brilliant" place in Virginia, the homestead of the Henry family, where he had often made pleasurable visits.

In the fall of 1786 he had occasion to visit the old fort at Bryan's Station, at which place he met Mr. Samuel Price and family, who had just arrived from Virginia, and who sought temporary safety and shelter within the fort, until they could arrange for a permanent settlement. Mr. Price finding some difficulty in obtaining a place immediately, Col. Russell placed his home and farm at his disposal. Arrangements were at once made for its occupancy by Mr. Price and his family. An attachment was very soon formed between Col. Russell and Nancy, the daughter of Mr. Price. She was born July 19th, 1768. They were married December 25th, 1786. Their married life proved a most happy one, Mrs. Russell exhibiting great strength of character and energy, as well as ability in rearing their large family of children.

Mount Brilliant was a most attractive place, and was famous in those days for its generous and elegant hospitality.

The following letters, written by Col. Russell to his brother Robert, are among the old collection in the writer's possession. From their early date, they will doubtless be read with interest by his descendants of the present day.

MOUNT BRILLIANT, June 8th, 1787.

DEAR BROTHER:—I received your kind letter written since my altered state. I now do myself the pleasure of congratulating you and sister Deborah on the same happy occasion, and hope that you may both live to enjoy a great deal of happiness in this life. When we shall meet together with our dear companions is uncertain, but I hope you with her will settle on the banks of Elkhorn, where we shall not only enjoy each other's company as brothers, but as neighbors also. A great satisfaction arises from our dear girls' coming from the same neighborhood, and being generally acquainted with each other's friends.

Your plantation is in fine order for cultivating any kind of product; and Brown and Orr would be glad to let you have it at any time for a trifle. I long to know whether you intend to settle there or not.

I must beg leave to refer you to Marshall and Fowler, who go in company with Mr. Jewell, for particulars.

Make my respectful compliments to sister Deborah, and tell her I would like much to see her on Elkhorn, but confess I have my doubts whether I ever shall or not.

Believe me with esteem, you affectionate brother,
W. RUSSELL.

ROBERT S. RUSSELL, Shenandoah, Va.

MOUNT BRILLIANT, Oct. 21st, 1787.

DEAR BROTHER:—I received your kind letter dated 9th of September, which gave great satisfaction to my dear Nancy and myself. I am sorry to learn from your letter, that you have declined coming to Kentucky for several years. I wish you may ever come.

You write me that you have sold six hundred acres of your Elkhorn tract. I hope you will run it out in such a way as not to injure your tract. Six hundred acres from any side of your tract, I think will hurt your mill-seat. I would recommend to you to lay it off to them in different places on the survey. You have sold it higher than land can be sold in this country.

Please make my respectful compliments to sister Deborah. I will write to her by the next opportunity that offers. My dear Nancy writes to her by Mr. Watson.

Mr. Thomas Brown gives his compliments to you, and wishes you not to let any one have your land here, after his time is out, without giving him the refusal. I wish you to let him have it again if it suits you. Orr has left his ground and rented it out. Brown is very deserving of the place, as I know he would not wish to injure the tract by cutting too much timber.

I hope you will come out next fall. I wish much to see you for several reasons. I hope you and sister Deborah will omit no opportunity of writing.

Make my respects to Col. Allen and family, and with love to sister Deborah, believe me to be

Affectionately yours,

W. RUSSELL.

P. S. My little daughter, Betsy,* grows fast, and her mamma says she is a picture.

MOUNT BRILLIANT, July 29th, 1790.

DEAR BROTHER:—Having an opportunity by Mr. Brown, I write you a few lines, merely to say that we are all well, and anxious to hear from you, sister, and the little children. I have received no letter from you for a long time, except the one by uncle Moore. We have had a draft in this district, by order of the President of the United States, for sixty-nine days, to march somewhere in the Indian country, and I am sorry to tell you that uncle Moore is among those drafted. There is no news of particular interest.

Excuse this short letter. I am dear brother, yours,

W. RUSSELL.

ROBERT S. RUSSELL, Shenandoah, Va.

MOUNT BRILLIANT, July 23d, 1792.

DEAR BROTHER:—I write to give you a caution about the sale of your lands in this neighborhood, as I have been informed that you have had thoughts latterly of parting with them. It is more than probable that your land will command forty shillings per acre before another twelve months. Capt. Campbell has at length established your mill-seat, though he was obliged to confine your order within the limits of your own land, which makes your dam lower than he wanted it. He wishes you, without fail, to get the money which Henry Roberts has in his possession, and send it out to him. He will fully depend upon you in this matter.

Your aunt Moore is in a bad state of health. Excuse the greatest haste. With love to sister Debby,

I am, dear brother, yours,

W. RUSSELL.

N. B. The seat of government, I think, will come to Lexington, which will make lands rise in this neighborhood.

FORT ADAMS, on the St. Marie's, Sept. 7th, 1794.

DEAR BROTHER:—It is with pleasure, I embrace this opportunity of writing to let you know that I am in good health. I shall, however, say but little, as the opportunity for conveying this is a little uncertain. I have no doubt that you have had the particulars of the action before this reaches you.

Todd's brigade is here, this far on their way to Ft. Recovery, as an escort to provisions for the army. They expect to return and join the main army by the 15th inst. It is hard to tell what our road will be from there, though I incline to believe Barbie's brigade will then return in for another escort, and at the same time the army will proceed up to the old village where we shall probably be met by Barbie's brigade on their return. Then I think we shall return to Kentucky. These are my ideas just as they occur, and do not undertake to say that this will certainly be the case.

Should you set out for the settlement before I return, I hope you will not neglect those matters upon which we were consulting, as well on Holston as in Culpeper. I hope you have given notice of the remonstrance in time, that must come forward to our Assembly, relative to the division of the Green river lands. Should you find it desirable when on Holston, you can make a division of the certificates belonging to the estate, and at least come at your own part. I have heard nothing from that neighborhood since I left it.

We have several of our men complaining, among them Mr. Wilson and David McCord. They are not at all dangerously sick, but I think it advisable to let them remain with the army. Tell sister Celah she need not be uneasy about Mr. Wilson, for there is not the smallest appearance of danger.

Remember me to Captain Campbell and the family, also to sister Debby. Make my regards to uncle Moore and Captain Richardson.

I remain your affectionate brother,
W. RUSSELL.

ROBERT S. RUSSELL, Lexington, Ky.

In the summer of 1825, Col. Russell became somewhat indisposed, and being called from his sick room to preside over a public meeting, the exposure increased his illness, and, on the 3d of July, 1825, his brave and generous spirit passed from its earthly tenement. His body lay in state on the 4th of July, the anniversary of that Independence which he had assisted to secure. His ashes rest unostentatiously, like an old soldier, with his family, at his old Kentucky home.

Mrs. Russell survived him, until September 30th, 1830.

Soon after her death, in order to facilitate a division of the estate, "Mount Brilliant" was sold and passed from the family.

It is now known as "Russell's Cave"; a post-office is established there, and it is a locality well known throughout the country. The public road passing it and leading into Lexington, has been known as the "Russell road" for nearly a century. There are yet a few still surviving who cherish hallowed memories of this place, as it was in the days of the olden time.

The children of Col. Russell were sixteen in number.
